

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A multi-channel input system connects between a plurality of terminals and a plurality of radio keyboards corresponding to these terminals by radio links (channels), according to a multi-channel system. A high-order terminal has a CPU that manages a setting status of each channel in this multi-channel input system, by using a channel-setting table, and notifies the setting status to any one of the terminals according to a request from this terminal.